Approval of Minutes

5/4/2021 ARA Budget Committee meeting

MOTION: Member Jackie Montague moved to approve the minutes as written. Member Ray Kopczynski seconded the motion, and it passed 13-0.

Budget message 6:06 p.m.

Troedsson showed slides* and gave a brief history of the Central Albany Revitalization Area (CARA) work. The focus of the last budget biennium was to partner and build. For this biennium, the focus is to build the waterfront project and large-scale private redevelopment projects. The Albany Revitalization Area (ARA) will continue to oversee progress and payoff of debt.

Budget overview

Finance Director Jeanna Yeager said this budget is all about finishing the waterfront project and building the partnership projects.

Newton wished to clarify that staff supporting the CARA are paid from transient lodging tax funds and CARA funds.

Member Smith said she remembers theoretical discussions of setting aside money for partnerships, but she doesn't remember a direction to do that. Johnson II remembers allocating money to the Wells Fargo project and the St. Francis project.

Economic Development Manager Seth Sherry said the ARA board will do fine-tuning on remaining funds at their next meeting. Forecasting and budgeting are not always the same thing.

Montague clarified that putting money into a larger partnerships budget allows more flexibility than putting it into several specific project items. Sherry agreed. Yeager said the City budgets at the program level. It's a good way to forecast what our needs will be but still be flexible.

Public comment

There was none.

Budget Review

Johnson II moved to approve the proposed budget. Montague seconded the motion.

Member Terry Virnig said the email he was sent was a brief synopsis. He wasn't able to go through the whole budget in the amount of time since it was posted. Troedsson said staff can budget the projects, but are we making progress towards accomplishing the goals of the urban renewal district? There is no expectation that the budget committee will examine the budget at the line-item level. There will be time to make updates if needed before the ARA board adopts the budget in May. Yeager said the ARA board can make changes at any time within the budgeted amounts.

On a roll call vote, the motion to approve the proposed budget passed 11-2, with Virnig and Newton voting no.

Adjournment

Hearing no further business, Summers adjourned the meeting at 6:35 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,

TO: Albany Revitalization Agency (ARA) Budget Review Committee and ARA Board

VIA: Peter Troedsson, City Manager

FROM: Kayla Barber-Perrotta, Deputy City Manager

DATE: April 30, 2025

SUBJECT: Recommended 2025-2027 Biennial Budget

When the Central Albany Revitalization (CARA) tax increment financing district (TIF) was established in 2001, the goal was to catalyze revitalization in Central Albany through targeted public investment and partnerships with the private sector. Over the years, despite economic setbacks such as the Great Recession and burgeoning inflation, the ARA Board and staff remained focused on completing 52 community-identified projects and strategically realigned spending to match evolving timelines and priorities. As a result, CARA has supported infrastructure upgrades, reduced vacancy rates, increased housing density, and attracted significant private investment—outcomes that will continue to benefit the community well beyond the life of the district.

The 2025–2027 biennium marks a major milestone: the Water Avenue Project is nearing completion. This transformative effort includes multiple public infrastructure upgrades and enhancements that have improved connectivity, supported economic activity, and created a welcoming, active waterfront that residents, businesses, and visitors alike can be proud of. It has become a central gathering point for the community in the heart of our historic downtown. The project reflects years of planning, design, and community engagement, and is a capstone achievement for CARA. Its completion will leave a legacy and serve as a catalyst for continued private redevelopment in the district.

As the district approaches its sunset, the ARA Board will be asked to provide direction on remaining resources and consider final investment opportunities in fall 2025. In reviewing the remaining debt service obligations, existing revenues, and potential maximum indebtedness for the district, staff has identified a potential $3.1M in funding that the district could choose to incur as part of its maximum indebtedness and subsequently expend for revitalization efforts. If the ARA board chooses to incur this revenue, it could be used for completing portions of previously identified projects that were adjusted due to inflation, new projects or programs, or other yet to be identified options.

This information was received late in the budget process, and staff is still working with our consultants to dial the final number in. To provide the ARA Board ample room to discuss this potential funding and still meet state required deadlines for budget adoption, the 2025-2027 Recommended Budget includes this $3.1M in reserves. This will allow the ARA's consultants to complete their analysis over the next few months, present those findings to the Board, and for the Board to have a meaningful discussion in the fall about potential options. At that point, any necessary budget adjustments can be made. This approach will help ensure that CARA's remaining funds are deployed in ways that maximize long-term impact, reinforce downtown vitality, and honor the original intent of the district, rather than having to be rushed for state deadlines. The 2025–2027 budget reflects a pivotal moment, balancing project completion, debt service, and preparation for final expenditures.
